Mary spent her last summer in a summer school. She studied two courses. When she wasn't studying, she travelled with her family. They visited interesting places near their home in Seattle, like parks, museums and the beach. It was a great way for Mary to relax and have fun with her family while also learning new things.

Mary's friend, Peter, had a different kind of summer. He worked at a gasoline station. His job was to sell gasoline to customers and fix cars. Peter worked hard and made a lot of money. He was very careful with his money and saved almost all of it, because he is going to university next year. He is excited about starting university and knows that the money he saved will help him pay for his tuition(学费).
